Oth. Let me ſee your eyes -- looke in my face.
Deſ. What horrible fancy's this?
Oth. Some of your function miſtriſſe,
Leaue procreants alone, and ſhut the dore,
Coſſe, or cry hem, if any body come,
Your miſtery, your miſtery: nay diſpatch. Exit Em.
Deſ. Vpon my knees, what does your ſpeech import?
I vnderſtand a fury in your words,
But not the words.
Oth. Why, what art thou?
Deſ. Your wife my Lord, your true and loyall wife.
Oth. Come, ſweare it, dam thy ſelfe,
Leaſt being like one of heauen, the diuells themſelues
Should feare to ceaſe thee, therefore be double damb'd,
Sweare thou art honeſt.
Deſ. Heauen doth truely know it.
Oth. Heauen truely knowes, that thou art falſe as hell.
Deſ. To whom, my Lord, with whom? how am I falſe?
Oth. O Deſdemona, away, away, away.
Deſ. Alas the heauy day, why do you weepe?
Am I the occaſion of thoſe teares my Lord?
If haply you my father doe ſuſpect,
An Inſtrument of this your calling backe,
Lay not your blame on me; if you haue left him,
Why I haue left him too.
Oth. Had it pleas'd heauen
To try me with affliction, had he ram'd
All kindes of ſores, and ſhames on my bare head,
Steep'd me in pouerty, to the very lips,
Giuen to captiuity, me and my hopes,
I ſhould haue found in ſome part of my ſoule
A drop of patience; but alas, to make me
A fixed figure, for the time of ſcorne,
To point his ſlow vnmouing fingers at -- oh, oh,
Yet could I beare that too, well, very well.
But there: where I haue garner'd vp my heart,
Where either I muſt liue, or beare no life,
